Jane Austen Society of North America
New York Metropolitan Religion

"Elementary, my Dear Emma?"

Misreadings and Missed Readings in Emma

Saturday, December 15, 2:00-5:00 pm

Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church

Please join Dr. Deborah Knuth Klenck, Professor of English at Colgate University, for an astute and entertaining lecture on Austen's Emma. In a Sherlock Holmes riff, we will discuss the ways Austen misleads the reader—especially when the reader is presuming that the handsome, clever and rich Emma herself knows what's going on. In particular, we will discuss the necessity of re-reading—since the first time we read Emma, we're reading as if we were the dim Dr. Watson. Only on second—or third or fourth—reading of this novel can we explain everything as Holmes always has to at the end of the story. In this lecture, we may even uncover the mysteries of certain dishes in the novel—gruel & sweetbread-and-asparagus, anyone?

An exciting raffle and a delightful afternoon tea will be held afterwards.

Reservation Form

Name: _____ Telephone: _____ Email: _____

Guest's Name(s): _____

Please reserve:	_____ member places	@ $ 40 each =	$_____
	_____ guest places	@ $45 each =	$_____
	_____ juvenilia places	@ $30 each=	$_____

Tax deductible donation for JASNA programming (Thank you!) $_____

Total enclosed $_____

Mail your check payable to JASNA-NY and send it with this reservation form to:

Diane Mangansarian, 170 West End Avenue # 21E, NYC, NY 10023-5442